Talent. Success. Inspiration.

British Bangladeshi Power 100 can be summarised in just three words: Talent. Success. Inspiration.

We have been delighted by the success of the first publication which was unique in recognising the depth and breadth of British Bangladeshis. For 2013, we continue to pay tribute to those who are helping shape Britain for the better with their ideas, example, talent and success and have endeavoured to unearth some hidden jewels as well as celebrating the more well known personalities.

On the journey to finalising the list, we have come to appreciate the diversity, strengths and growing confidence of British Bangladeshis. We want the publication to be used as a resource and a focus of discussion. We hope that you will celebrate the amazing stories of the 100 but also take time to pause and reflect on how to inspire and support the next generation to achieve more.

2012, what an incredible year! We have memories to last a lifetime and are really proud to recognise the contribution of the British Bangladeshi community to the Olympic and Paralympic Games. From helping to win the bid to mesmerising the world at the opening ceremony (with the many Gamesmakers and torch-bearers in between), this community has played an incredible role at the Games which is truly worthy of celebration.

Thank you to our expert judging panel and in particular to Iqbal Wahhab OBE and Syed Nahas Pasha for their esteemed advice and commitment to the project. Special thanks to Anne Main MP for hosting the launch event and thanks also to our broadcast and print media partners, sponsors and supporters.

Finally, congratulations to all members of the 2013 BBPower100. You are the role models for "Generation BB".

Abdal Ullah and Ayesha Qureshi MBE

Messages of Support

As Mayor, I am proud of the positive contribution all our communities make to the life of London, and in particular the work of the Bangladeshi community. Like many communities, the Bangladeshi community played a huge part in delivering the most successful Olympic and Paralympic Games ever.

The BBPower100 will undoubtedly profile and celebrate the community's innumerable successes, as well as inspiring the next generation of Bangladeshi leaders to contribute even more to the economic, social and cultural life of this great city.

I would like to salute the efforts of Abdal Ullah and Ayesha Qureshi MBE for the creation and compilation of this important resource, and I wish you all the best with the launch of the publication.

Boris Johnson
Mayor of London

I'm delighted to have the opportunity to recognise the role of the British Bangladeshi community in the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

I said in my speech at the Opening Ceremony that "one day we will tell our children and our grandchildren that when our time came we did it right". We did it right, so thank you for playing your part in helping us to win the Bid, supporting LOCOG in so many aspects of planning and staging the Games, coming to cheer on the athletes, volunteering, and helping to make the world feel at home in the East End of London. We can all be proud of what we have achieved together. These Games brought out the best of us.

Our motto for the Games was "Inspire A Generation", and I congratulate Ayesha and Abdal for using the BBPower100 and the role of the British Bangladeshi community in the Olympic and Paralympic Games to celebrate and inspire the future generations of British Bangladeshis to achieve their full potential.

Sebastian Coe CH, KBE
Chairman of the LOCOG

The BBPower100 is a celebration of leading British Bangladeshi figures who are helping shape Britain for the better with their ideas, example, talent and success.
